

Sub-Committees and Attendance

The School Governance (Procedures) (England) Regulations 2003 give Governing Bodies more flexibility to determine their own procedures. More emphasis is now given to the process of recording and reviewing the structure of the Governing Body and its decisions regarding delegation.

There are no longer any statutory committees, but in practice, many Governing Bodies continue to manage their work in this way. They must establish the purpose, membership and proceedings of any committee and review these annually. Any decisions made by the committee under delegated powers must be reported back to the full Governing Body.
